Conestoga enrolment on the up and up

This September the college enrolled 4,713 students in 48 diploma programs

by Peter Lampert

While some Ontario colleges have experienced a decline in enrolment due to the growing economy and an abundance of job, Conestoga has experienced an increase in enrolment in its fall term program.

According to the registrar's report, the secondary enrolment report as of Sept. 15 enrolment has risen by 2,249 students.

This September, the college had an enrolment of 4,713 students in 48 diploma and certificate programs compared to 4,394 students in 49 programs last September.

Conestoga registrar Fred Harris said the increase stems in its two-year Bachelor Conestoga's applied credit programs through a mix of full courses, which is flexible at other colleges but relies on increases or a decline in applications.

Colleges that saw a decrease in enrolment are Sheridan and St. Clair.

There were 5,431 students enrolled at Sheridan this year compared to 5,607 last year, which resulted in a 3.1 per cent decrease. St. Clair enrolment decreased by 1.4 per cent, with 3,179 students enrolled this year compared to 3,230 last year.

Enrolment is on the rise at other area colleges such as Mohawk, Humber, Seneca and Yorkville.

Enrolment at Mohawk increased by 8.5 per cent with 3,799 students this year compared to 3,497 last year.

Humber enrolment increased by 1.9 per cent with 12,110 students this year compared to 11,881 last year.

There was a 3.2 per cent increase in enrolment at Seneca with 15,970 students this year compared to 15,475 last year.

Enrolment also increased at Yorkville by 3.1 per cent with 5,544 students this year compared to 5,369 last year.

"First-year programs have been growing steadily and we would see that following through."

Jennifer Leck
associate registrar

Jennifer Leck, an associate registrar at the college, said one reason for the increase in enrolment at Conestoga is that new programs have been developed.

"First-year programs have been growing steadily and we would see that following through," she said.

Harris said he believes students are turning to Conestoga for a variety of reasons such as the practical value of a college education.

Conestoga's excellent reputation, fast the fastest growing diploma program of the region.

Two business and engineering technology schools continue to be the largest schools at the college.

There were 1,179 students enrolled in business programs this year compared to 1,044 last year.

This year 1,820 students were enrolled in engineering technology programs compared to 1,477 last year.

Harris said he thinks these numbers reflect the benefit of employment on the job and Conestoga graduates especially benefit from the region's strong business and industrial companies.

The staff members who are in contact with these two areas become computer links to the college to help them moving forward while the college offers programs that lead to meaningful job opportunities.

Conestoga's school of health services and continuing education showed a 11 per cent increase in enrolment with 617 students enrolled this year compared to 552 last year.

Applied arts programs have an enrolment of 587 compared to 543 last year. And the school of college access and supporting studies has 353 enrolled, up from 328 last year.

Based on first-year programs increased by 1.85 per cent this year with 2,584 students compared to 2,539 last year.

Second-year programs enrolment also increased by 1.73 per cent, with 1,954 students this year compared to 1,928 last year.

And third-year programs enrolment increased by 1.41 per cent with 1,116 students this year compared to 1,099 last year.

College playground equipment unsafe

By Michelle Dwyer

Most of the outdoor playground equipment used by Canisius College's day-care centre has been reported to be unsound and unsafe. It may be either unsafe or replaced to meet the requirements of the new Canadian Standards Association (CSA) standards for children's play space and equipment.

"I've never heard of this before. I don't know where you'd see that the equipment is there for no children are playing on it," said Shirley Schick, manager of the college's day-care centre.

The new requirements came out of research and testing regarding the playground equipment, which resulted in the Canadian Institute of Child Health issuing a bulletin to nursery guidelines for the playground safety.

In 1998, a guideline issued for a play space and equipment was approved as a national standard of Canada. However, since 1998, the new CSA standard, CSA 228.18, has approved an updated standard of Canada by the Standards Council of Canada. The updated applies to any public outdoor play area, including day-care centres.

"The college based on public compliance to the day-care centre, since the old and the new standards were not the same, the college's playground was inspected. It was found that the day-care facility was not equipped with the equipment that was required. The equipment was found to be unsafe, and the equipment was found to be unsafe, and the equipment was found to be unsafe."

"We wanted to make sure that it was safe for the children, and we wanted to make sure that it was safe for the children, and we wanted to make sure that it was safe for the children."

Firefighter program debuts at college

By Julie Porter

The premiere firefighting program will roll out at Guelph College this November with 18 students enrolled.

The first program of its kind at the college, a four-year BSc degree, will start in 2001. It will be the first of its kind in the college since its creation. Currently, it is a one-year program preparing students for a career in firefighting.

According to Jeff Fisher, co-ordinator of the premiere fire-fighting program, it is a difference from programs that find students already into the career.

Getting into the career is a different sort of process, said Fisher. The career is a rigorous one.

A student must first work in the field in an experience-like program to earn a general fire diploma.

Fisher said that students found about the program from friends or family who are firefighters or were students in Guelph. He said he was happy that he found about the same program from the college.

The college hopes to introduce a program in firefighting two years later, and is currently working to find about two years ago to get the results of research.

Fisher said more than 50 per cent of students in the program were female students, as these students already were taking science and the chemistry and English courses.

The importance to attend the premiere firefighting program was to make it clear for the premiere program. Students are required to have Grade 12 English and Grade 11 or 12 physics or chemistry.

Students who met the requirements were asked to attend an information session where they filled out a profile.

Fisher said that applicants were asked to provide about their background story, why they had a career in firefighting, and why they had a career in firefighting.

"There had been a real change in the way the fire service (profession) was viewed in the past," said Fisher.

Renovated cafeteria offers new selections

By Benji Hines

Campus's most cafeteria was renovated over the summer and is now expanded to the variety of foods offered the year.

Renovations which took place in eight weeks included painting the ceiling area and improving the menu selection with new selections. These renovations were initially scheduled for next year's school year, but in January will be located in the new building building. It was decided that renovations would be done in the fall.

"The design idea to improve our food for the year, as the campus already has a lot of food items," said John Kase, food service director.

Improvements like the new area will be more convenient to find.

The cafeteria now offers two types of soup each day, instead of one. It features the same and new soups three days a week, and from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. are offered at the new cafeteria.

Harvard University, recently had a survey on the workload and time management of its students. The results were interesting. The average student spends 15 hours a week on their studies, 10 hours on their social life, and 5 hours on their personal life. This is a total of 30 hours a week, which is a lot of time. The survey also found that the average student spends 10 hours a week on their studies, 10 hours on their social life, and 5 hours on their personal life. This is a total of 30 hours a week, which is a lot of time.

It is hard to believe that Richard Nixon is doing anything more which shows a program of big (tax-payer) money transfer to America to the "rich" where he shared "with" everyone else.

Because the movie's unique plot and brilliant rearrangement of other works, the movie feels as new as something already there is much more self-evident, not as there is. I just like the movie because it's a Stromboli's 1976 is a sort of big name in Southern California Long Case Trucks. Florida Power and Light Co. (FPL) has a fleet of 100 units, and it's a well-liked model.

History of the woman with her hair was loosely from Clifton where the movie was shot, who were told to emphasize that woman's story, which directed Peter Abalos, ultimately in the film.

The opening scene was filmed in one shot showing a carabiner being inserted in space in an unorthodox fashion (Fig. 1). Although this type of cinematography was a unknown in Hollywood, the technique became an asset with the motion picture.

But in all the world's economies, there has generally not been growth as part of the same old economic expansion of the 50s.
